SPOTLIGHT ON: WORKING AT HEIGHTS

Working at heights presents inherent risks, often leading to severe injuries or fatalities if safety precautions are not diligently followed. Statistics underscore the urgency of implementing comprehensive safety measures. According to the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) in the UK reported that falls from height were the most common cause of fatalities in the workplace, with 40 fatalities recorded in 2022/2023 alone.

To mitigate these risks and ensure the safety of workers, it is imperative to prioritise comprehensive training programs. Proper training equips workers with the necessary knowledge and skills to perform tasks at heights safely.

Training courses such as the Prefabricated Access Suppliers' and Manufacturers' Association (PASMA) and the International Powered Access Federation (IPAF) offer valuable training on the safe use of equipment such as scaffolding, mobile elevated work platforms (MEWPs).

Additionally, training in the safe use of steps and ladders is crucial, as these seemingly simple tools can pose significant risks if used incorrectly.

By investing in thorough training programs and adhering to industry best practices, employers can create a safer working environment for employees tasked with working at heights.

Prioritising safety not only preserves human lives but also enhances productivity and fosters a culture of responsibility within the workplace.
